MEN WHO WANT THE GOVERNMENT TO CONTROL EVERY INDUSTRY.

The Arguments of the Nationalist Cinb for a Gigantic Governmental Menepely Which Shall Destroy Ali the Sources of Petty Vices in the People and Make the Nation a Human Paradise.

BOSTON, May 31.—Edward Bellamy, the Chic pee lawyer whose writings gave the impulse to the movement having for its end the nationalimation of industry and the colistment of all men and women in a vast industrial army, appeared pefore his Boston friends in the Free Religious Society to-day and told them why he thought the present industrial system was capable of such immense improvement. As Mr. Bellamy's new social state promises to do great things for the women, the fair sex formed the majority of his audience, and applauded the modest young champion of reform enthusiastically. Col. Higginson presided in his usual courtly fashion, and among the more notable of those on the stage were Dr. McGlynn, who also spoke; Novslist Howells, Bev. Mr. Bliss, the Christian list leader, and Rev. Minot J. Savage.

Mr. Bellamy spoke as the representative of the Boston Nationalist Club. The little band of world reformers organized in this city under the name of the Nationalist Club are very hopeful lot, and no less active than They are kept busy spreading over the country the principles of the golden scheme government which they hope some day will be realized, although none but the more sanguine expect to live long enough to see it in practical operation.

The plan of the Nationalists is but one step removed from that proposed by the Socialists, so called, but it is much more radical. They proose that all industry shall be assumed by the Government, from the most insignificant to the most important. The Government, for instance, shall operate the railroads, the telegraphs and the telephones; shall control the highways, parks and public gardens; conduct the ware houses, work the mines, plant and gather the crops and keep the mills in operation, raise the beef and slaughter it for the markets, conduct the newspapers and run the horse-cars, manage the hotels, the theatres and concert halls; have charge of the schools, colleges, libraries and museums, and publish all the books. In short, the Government shall supply all the necessaries of life, as well as the lunaries, and guarantee the education and enlightenment of the people, while at the same time insuring their protection. In return for these things Government shall have the right to exact of every man and woman services to be given in that particular field of effort where they shall do the most good for the nation. An industrial army of men and women numbering millions upon millions of laborers and arisans shall be diratted year by year into the service of the State. These warriors of industry may choose their callings each according to his tastes, but Government reserves the right to take him out of that particular calling and put him in another more fitted to his physical and mental capabilities. Enlistment in the industrial army shall not begin until the soldier has received a good, sound education at the expense of the State, continuing up to the age of twenty-one, or even longer. Then until he is forty-five years old he shall work for the Matae, and after that time go on the retired list for the remainder of his days. This martial discipline shall apply to women as to men. The industrial army shall be graded according to the higher and lower classes of tabor to be performed, and a member of one class is always eligible for the next higher, providing be can prove himself worthy of promotion, and likewise he may be relegated from a higher to a lower class should he not show his right to remain.

There shall be no money nor wages in this new state. Each worker in the army, in whatever capacity, shall receive "labor tickets," which shall entitle him to a certain share in the distribution of the national product, and which he may dispose of as he wishes. These tickets, shall have an equal value, and the common day laborer's ticket shall be worth no less to him than is that of the worker in the higher walks of life. President Harrison's income, for charge of the schools, colleges, libraries and museums, and publish all the books. In short,

Sook, his chimney-sweep or his washerwoman.

REAUTIES OF THE SCHEME.

The beauty of the Nationalist scheme would be, it is claimed, the dignifying of labor and the annihilation of competition. Avarice, sortidness, selfishness and kindred evils of existing social systems, so the Nationalists say, would have no place in the new state, for the reason that man would have no inducement to hoard his riches nor any desire to get ahead of his neighbor. Of this world's goods each man would have pretty nearly share and share alike—a good, generous share, too—and that share could never be increased, no matter how long and hard a man should labor, nor even decreased, so long as he did his work properly. creased, so long as he did his work properly. Competition, with its attendant evils, would be useless, and, being useless, would be impos-and hard a man should labor, nor even decreased, so long as he did his work properly. Competition, with its attendant evils, would be useless, and, being useless, would be impossible.

The practical operation of any given business, coal mining, for instance, would be like this: The Government officials would know beforehand just how much coal it would be necessary to mine in order to warm the nation's households and cook its food. Laborers who were best fitted to mine coal-and others to transfer it to the centres of communication and population would be enlisted. If not enough men to work the mines made application the Government would exercise its prerogative and draft the number wanted. It might be that these coal miners would mine enough coal in six mouths to supply the country for two years. The mines would then shut down and the laborers would go to work in other occupations. 'Coal-barons, 'coal strikes and the restriction of the annual output so as to maintain prices would be unheard of. 'Molly Maguires' would have no cause for organizing.

A newspaper would be conducted thus: A certain body of men who wanted a paper would get together and express their desire to the Government for a daily or weekly trade journal or illustrated paper. These men would subscribe enough 'labor tickets' to met the expenses of the project and an editor, recorters, compositors, &c., would be delegated by the Government officials, each according to his special abilities. These employees would give their services by the labor tickets of the beneficiaries. If the editor was unsatisfactory he could be compensated for the less of their service by the labor tickets of the beneficiaries. If the editor was unsatisfactory he could be a failure in the editorial chair that the Civil-Service Board might put him in charge of a block-amith shop.

All articles of woaring apparel and all sorts of provisions should be procured at the public stora, conveniently located, supplied from larger importing storehones conducted for the pasting of the s and a Cabinet. Rotation in office should be a constitutional enactment. There being neither parties nor factions, the rush for the spoils of office would be unnecessary. Office-seekers would not be confronted by the alluring prospect of patronage to be dispensed, because of patronage there would be none. Every Government official should be paid no more, no less than any other laborer in the army. Statesmen should be chosen because of their special abilities, and after leaving office, they should return to the ranks. Civil-service boards would be unnecessary, nepotism in the Presidential office impossible. Blocks of five uncalled for

So much for the theory briefly outlined. But is it practicable?

The Nationalists claim that the evolution of all modern industrial enterprise is in the direction of consolidation under one head of the same interests operating on the same lines of achievement. Trusts, monopolies and syndicates are the result, with the consequent minimizing of the energy put forth and the simplification of the methods used. The modern frust, hey aver, is but a regiment of industrial toldiers directed by a single capitalistic head. While it is born of competition, it destroys that which gave it birth, and opens up a field for more extended, more profitable and much less wasteful effort. It makes rich those who control it, and makes poor those who are its auticust. The evolution of the Trust as a destroyer of competition, the Nationalists claim, is only another proof of the tendency of the times towards Socialism, or a Governmental Trust. The more Trusts the nearer the dawn of the Socialistic era, they say.

Why not combine, say the Nationalists, all industry into a government monopoly, of which all the people are the owners and at the same time the sharers? Why not save all the wasted effort now drawn from the decrept industrial body under individualism and unrestricted competition and concentrate it upon a nationalized industry with the people as the monopolists and all possible competition stamped out? Let the state govern industry and insist only that each man shall give the state service in return for life and protection, suggest these nineteenth century philosophers, and the most sample, happy and successful form of government will be attained, poverty will be annihilated, misery blotted out, suicides unheard of, insamity largely diminished, dishonesty discouraged, the prisons emptied, a loftier moral sentiment built up, and the whole nation lifted to a higher and more excited plane, with undreamed of possibilities for peace, happiness and brotherly love and exploded idea. Selfishness, avarices and kindred eris are only the

JUDGE THURSTON GOES, TOO.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLICAN LEAGUE A GUEST OF GEN. ALGER.

Judge John M. Thurston, of Nebraska, ha been invited to become a member of Gen. Alger's party that starts for Alaska this month. He has about concluded to accept. Up to date the party will consist of Gen. and Mrs. Alger, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Platt and Judge and Mrs. Thurston. Gen. Alger's private car will carry eight persons comfortably and it is probable that two more will be added to the list before the 20th, the date fixed for their departure.

Judge Thurston, who is stopping at the Fifth venue Hotel, was the Temporary Chairman of the last Republican National Convention. He is a prominent railroad attorney and has considerable influence in the Republican councils it doubt regarding the successful manipulation of the Republican League Clubs is largely eliminated.

There is enough in the movement to give the present occupant of the White House a cold chill if he is seriously thinking of frying to get a renomination.

The treatment Judge Thurston has received at the hands of Harrison predisposed him to take up with the Alger movement. Outside of the appointment of Patrick Egan (who was hardly regarded as a resident of the State) as Minister to Chill, Nebraska has been practically ignored in the distribution of Federal patronage. Judge Thurston says frankly that the Republicans of Nebraska and throughout the West have no sympathy with the civil service notions of the Harrison Administration. Gen. Alger, Judge Thurston declares with emphasis, is a man of his word, honest and capable, and has an absolutely unassailable record.

If cantime the journey of the Alger party to Alaska bids fair to become one of the most memorable and significant events in politics for the next three years.

The Opposition in the Consolidated Organizes to Depose Wilson.

The opposition to the re-election of Charles G. Wilson as President of the Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange took shape yesterday afternoon at the Stevens House, when George W. The opposition to the present incumbent has been augmented in no small degree by that gentleman's accession to the Presidency of the Board of Health. It is Further proceedings were had vesterday be fore ex-Judge Edward Countryman, as ref-cree for the Supreme Court, in the suit of the State of New York vs. Comptroller Theodore W. Myers for the recovery of $326,-000 which the city refuses to pay on its State assessment. The city officials have held for six or seven years that an unequal share of State taxes have been levied against the city. For two years the full amount levied was paid and suit brought by the Comptroller for the recovery of what was considered an excess. The Court of Appeals, however, decided that, having paid, the city could not recover; conse quently, when the assessment for $887 was made, the Comptroller issued warrants up to a reservation of $326,000, thus compelling the State to enter suit. The total amount involved in these proceedings is nearly $1,000,000, as the assessments for 1888 and 1880 are also in dispute. James W. M. Both Mr. Chapin and Mr. O'Brien were recalled after recess. Counsel on both sides examined the witnesses at length, the city endeavoring to elicit the fact that the Equalization Board had simply taken the estimates of the assessors and adopted them. When asked if a cortain county had voluntarily increased its estimates of values and a part of that increase was taken off, he could not say where it went.

"NOW TAKE THE OTHER ONE."

Jenious Wife's Parewell Before She Blew Out Her Brains. BALTIMORE. May 31. - The body of Mrs.

Margaret Leindner, thirty-six years old, was found early last evening by her husband, John Leindner, in the garden of her home, on the Annapolis Road. Her husband, John Leindner said he had been married about sixteen years and that his wife was, very jealous.
"Thursday we concluded to separate," he

"Thereday we concluded to separate," he said, "and I was asked to go to the city and offer a place, which we owned together, for sale. I did not succeed in selling the property, and my wife said she would try to sell it. She went to Baltimore yesterday afternoon and when she came back she kindled the fire for supper. While I was sitting on the front porch I heard a noise sounding like a board being broken. I then remembered that during the past week she had purchased a pistol. John East, who owns a place above mine, came along, and I asked him to stop and see if we could find her. Mr. East found my wife lying on her back, with the blood flowing from a wound in her right temple. At her feet on the left side, lay a pistol. Her hands were across her breast. I aid not disturb her, but notified Squire Rieffer. I asked Mr. East to go upstairs, and there we found these words written on the hursen: "Good night. Now take the other one." She once showed me a pistol, saying: 'Lookat this.' I replied I had one also.'

Saveral witnesses testified that Mrs. Leindner told them that if she met a certain woman she would kill her or kill herself.

John East says that when he and Leindner came upon the body of the dead woman, he suspected that some one had been there before who wished some one else to be the first to discover the remains. East is credited also with saying that the position of the woman's body lying at full length upon the ground with her citching arranged nicely about her, was not such as would have likely happened in a case of suicide. Consequently his suspicions were aroused, Hence much importance is attached to East testimony, which has not yet been given before the Coroner.
